A Quick Overview of Black Wall Street

In the early 1900's the neighborhood of Greenwood, located in Tulsa, Oklahoma, became known as the "Black Wall Street." It was during this time that African-Americans populated Greenwood, making it a hotspot for thriving black businesses. Due to segregation and racial prejudice during this time, many African-Americans could not conduct business in surrounding neighborhoods, affecting their businesses, employment, and income. As a result of segregation, the entire community of African-Americans in Greenwood came together to create their own services in order to survive. Greenwood became a robust and self-sustaining community which contained businesses like: barber-shops, salons, clothing stores, jewelry stores, restaurants, taverns, doctors, dentists, and lawyers. There was a strong desire among the African American community in Greenwood to keep their money circulating and benefiting the people of their community, having a constant cash flow into African American businesses. It wasn't until 1921 when the wealthiest Black enclave in the nation suddenly came to an end. This was due to the Tulsa Race Massacre, where white rioters were given the authority to loot, kill, and destroy this prosperous African American community. The death toll was estimated to be around 300, making it one of the most horrific and violent racial acts ever committed on American soil.

Key Locations of Greenwood, Tulsa in 1921

Answer the following questions based on the map above

- 1) What are some of the key takeaways from this map (either visual or informative)?
- 2) How big is Greenwood compared to the rest of the city of Tulsa? What does this say about how powerful it was during its time period?
- 3) Discuss with your peers: Are there any significant differences between the red-dotted locations outside of Greenwood vs. those within Greenwood?

Woodrow Wilson House

Answer the following questions based on the map above

- 1) Compare the two maps. How do they differ? How are they similar? Create a t-chart that consists of information from both maps.
- 2) Make a claim about Black Wall Street, based on the two maps above
- 3) What do these maps make you question about the time period, Tulsa, or Black Wall Street?

Students should be placed in groups of 3 students. Hand each student in the group a different news article. Give students 10-15 minutes to independently read the articles. Once students have read their articles, ask them to do the exercises below in their notebooks.

INDIVIDUAL TASKS

To do independently after you have read your article.

1. Write your initial observations.

GROUP TASKS

As a group discuss the articles you each have read, answer the following questions in your notebook.

1. Write any new observations that came up during your group discussion.
2. What types of businesses did you find to be most common in the three newspaper articles?
3. Did any of the prices of the things being advertised surprise you?
4. List the streets where some of these businesses were located. Is there a commonality with some of them?
5. Did it surprise you that all of these businesses were owned by African-Americans? Why?
6. List some of the different career fields you saw in these newspapers. Which was the most common and which was the most uncommon? Why is this?
7. Did it surprise you to see advertisements for African-American chiropractors, doctors, opticians, and lawyers?
8. How did these types of businesses shift the way people saw African-Americans during this time?
9. Do these ads showcase a thriving African American community?

AFRO-AMERICAN CULLINGS

It took three years of training at Hampton Institute to bring me to the point of being willing to die Negro songs in the presence of white people, who maintain with me that I am doing more than any other single agent to bring to the land of Negroes and raise the Negro to dignify his own name.

H. Nathaniel Dent, director of vocal work at Hampton, says:

"There is no more reasonable tendency among certain people than the disposition either to despise Negro folk songs altogether or else use them as means of race excitation, neither is there any practice that would be more conducive... dancing has no more valuable basis, from a historical, traditional or musical point of view than these folk songs. For this reason I should be the first to advise that Negro music be excluded sufficiently already through machine and printed records, and any further attempt to keep Negro music out of the world should be met with the outmost prejudice of all serious-minded people."

"It is imperative, in my opinion, for people who are sincerely interested in the Negro and his own respectable contribution to American civilization to use every opportunity to display the folk songs of their people and thereby to encourage the Negro to sing the folk songs in their own beautiful primitive form, but also to encourage him to share their possibilities for use as themes for national anthems and even operas. This will be more than anything else to dignify them in the estimation of educated Negroes."—Bookman, Wash., D.C.

"Success depends upon ability to do something useful to perform some kind of service that the world wants. Teach the Negroes how they may help themselves; then no one will need to help them."

Such is the tenor of the teachings of Booker T. Washington, who was born a slave and died the leader of his race.

He did more than any other one man to solve the race problem of the South, and he devoted his energies to educating his people in the practical and industrial pursuits of life. The message which he left to us as a people was that the Negro should learn to work skillfully, to acquire property, own his land, drive his own mule and plow, and be able to take care of his own crop and keep it off the market.

That was the doctrine that took form at Tuskegee, a school that is today one of a national laboratory in which a race problem is being worked out, a public service institution developed by a man who was born in bondage and whom three presidents of the United States called their own "confidant" and to whom the name of "Father" was applied the phrase—"The combined wisdom and judgment of generations."

Washington was born in Franklin County, Virginia, in 1831 or 1832; he was sure of the date of the place, and of his ancestry he knew almost nothing. "My mother," he once wrote, "I suppose attracted the attention of a purchaser who, afterward my owner and hers. Of my father I know even less than my mother. I do not even know his name."

The first Alabama Negro state fair at the Tennessee park, Birmingham, Ala., after a two days' program of all lectures and exhibits, was said to equal any of the kind ever before held. One hundred thirty of the exhibits that during the whole time in which more than one hundred thousand Negroes attended at a single event was made, not a single drink was discovered, and not a case of disorder was in evidence.

In the presence and escort of other dignitaries (S. R. Knight of Florida, of Florida, of which E. M. Smith is captain, was the prize. In the automobile race George Roberts, driving an E. F. car, won the prize, making the five-mile distance in a quarter-mile track in six minutes. "Old Man" owned by H. L. Winham and driven by C. Cottonson, made the same distance in 7-25.

In Brazil, where the latest developed wooden telegraph poles, the railroad saw wood cut rails for poles.

New England Presbyterian preachers receive an average of $1275 a year in salary.

After three years of work a government committee has recommended a uniform system of weights and measures for all of India.

Breakfast seldom attracts a fashionable gathering and never one that is exclusive.

There is at least one thing women can do that men can't—and that is, say "good-by" gracefully.

The devil doesn't expect to be invited into the parlor the first time.

Some proclamation issued was put to work by its stipulator in a West Virginia and Virginia. Dismissed was interested. He learned his first lesson in the school of the Negro. They were at Hampton Institute for a term to take charge of the work. Doctor T. Washington was sent. This was in 1881, when Washington began work with a disrupted study and an abandoned school by the school trustees and out of sight.

Mrs. Ida H. Wells Barrett said:

"Her race has had its greatest leader. Booker T. Washington had, and that is what makes our race so great. The natural separation between the two races can be bridged only by one who is in ready communication with both sides."

Dr. Theodore Roosevelt made the following statement on the death of Booker T. Washington:

"He deeply shocked and grieved at the death of Dr. Booker T. Washington, he was one of the distinguished citizens of the United States, a man who rendered greater service to his own race than ever had been rendered by anyone else, and, in so doing, also rendered great service to the whole country. I mourn his loss and feel that one of the most useful citizens of our land has gone."

The exposition at Chicago, August 12 to December 15, is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the emancipation of the colored race in this country, an exhibit of more than a thousand people who have been selected to those of that race. Manifestly the list is incomplete, as it is impossible to determine from the patent office records whether an applicant and patentee is white or colored, but much effort was made by Henry P. Baker, who was detailed by the commissioner of the patent office to share of the patent exhibit inasmuch as it is complete as to the names of all who have been appointed to the examining corps in March, 1903, and has been given from time to time to his present position as general examiner.

Another colored man, Edwin O. Clark, was appointed to the examining corps in August, 1903, but resigned to accept a professorship in a college.

A man thinks he has many uses of common and but very few of uncommon.

However, the less a man talks, the more he doesn't have to apologize.

All the southern states have separate schools for white and colored children. In 1912 there were 20 separate Negro schools in the South, 100 public high schools, and 170 private high schools, technical colleges and other schools. The following states had separate high schools for Negroes, viz: Alabama, 4; Arkansas, 4; Delaware, 1; District of Columbia, 1; Florida, 4; Georgia, 14; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 10; Missouri, 14; North Carolina, 2; North Carolina, 11; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 21; Virginia, 2; West Virginia, 2.

A Pennsylvania inventor has patented a mail carrier the jaws of which have a graduated series of serrations to engage mails of different sizes.

A machine has been invented to break logs from potato vines as it is driven over a field and crush them to death between steel plates.

The first thing a young man learns at college is how little his parents know.

Electricians in Sweden have succeeded in extracting carbon from tar and making it into sensitive light carbons and furnace electrodes.

Until you have discussed the matter with your wife, you are likely to believe a woman has good taste.

Education Resources – WWH Fall Scholar 2021- Taite Ines Lesson Plan 1– Black Wall Street – Activity 3 – Black Wall Street & The Tulsa Race Massacre

CLASS ACTIVITY

Show students the video on the Tulsa Race Massacre <https://youtu.be/x-ItsPBTFO0>. Ask students to answer the following questions in their notebooks;

1. Why do you think the facts of this massacre are “still unraveling?”
2. Why was Black Wall Street seen as an “anomaly?”
3. How did the relationship between Page and Rowland ignite this massacre?
4. Who do you think covered up this massacre and why?
5. Would you call this a massacre or a riot? Why or Why not?
6. How does the word “riot” play into the cover-up?
7. Do you believe this investigation should be reopened? Why or why not?

GROUP ACTIVITY

Get into groups of 5. Each student gets a different image from the Tulsa Race Massacre. Look at your image and take notes on what you see. Then share and discuss your observations with your group.
